NEW CHIEF EXECUTIVE FOR GROUP OF 100

President of the Group of 100 (“G100”), Zlatko Todorcevski, today announced that Stephen Woodhill has been appointed Chief Executive Officer of the organisation. The appointment comes as Peter Meehan steps down as CEO after nearly seven years.

“We are pleased to have someone with Stephen’s experience stepping into the role. He has a successful track record in corporate public affairs working for publicly listed companies, lobby groups, regulatory authorities and corporate affairs consultancies.

Stephen will play a key role as the G100 continues its advocacy on key financial and business policy helping to strengthen Australia’s international competitiveness. We will continue to bring commercial perspectives and practical solutions to often highly technical discussions aimed at achieving the right policy settings on issues from tax reform to financial reporting and capital markets.

I would like to thank Peter for his efforts as CEO steering the G100 through nearly seven years. He ensured senior finance executives from many private and public enterprises were able to work together to encourage positive financial reform in Australia, we thank him for his contribution and wish him well in the future,” Mr Todorcevski said.
